Discover How Altair Units Revolutionize Your Approach

With Altair Units – our patented, unified licensing system – you get the ability to overcome any challenge through access to Altair's industry-leading technology. Units offer teams and organizations unmatched power and flexibility by letting users run software and workloads from anywhere, giving them the freedom to choose what technology they need when they need it, and delivering unparalleled value for more than 150 Altair and partner products.

Licensing is as easy as 1-2-3:

1. Shared Unit Pool
Users can access a pool of sharable Altair Units from anywhere.

2. Choice of Application(s)
Users draw Units from the pool that give them access to the products and workloads they need from any location.

3. Units Return to Pool
After use, Units return to the shared pool and again become available to any user.

Giving Your Team the Tools to Succeed

We've organized our product portfolio into suites of tools that align with organizations' core roles. From designers and engineers to data analysts and enterprise users, our solutions give teams the tools and scope they need to be successful under a single, value-based license.

Users receive:

- Access to a rich portfolio of technologies at affordable price points with tailored bundles of products that target specific users
- Scalability that maximizes the power of existing investment into high-performance computing (HPC) resources in-house, in the cloud, on-demand, and in hybrid approaches
- Portability to execute simulations anywhere (on-premises or cloud) without business restrictions
- Simplicity of a single Altair One experience to manage software and HPC hardware assets and its usage
